

Hanoi

Awarded an honorary doctorate by Vietnam National University in recognition of work that I've have done there during the past decade.

Since 1997 I have initiated and administered a number of programs with VNU: several faculty exchanges sponsored by a grant from the US State Department, student exchanges, and curriculum and faculty development programs in political science and economics.

My wife, Bonnie, and I lived in Hanoi for more than two years, cumulatively, during that time, and I managed to learn Vietnamese. Look forward to many more trips to Vietnam in the coming years, and I would be delighted to show any classmates around Hanoi if our paths cross there.
