

Two years as a lieutenant in the Army, but not in Vietnam. At Ft. Benning, GA, trying criminal cases, doing race relations work, and working for Judge Reid Kennedy, later the judge in the trial of Lt. William Calley on murder charges arising out of the My Lai massacre.

[Editorial insertion: the Wiki for Geoff Cowan states: "In 1974, Seymour Hersh revealed that Cowan was his source for a story on the My Lai Massacre that won Hersh the 1970 Pulitzer Prize for International Reporting."]

32 years in law school teaching, after several years in NYC with Debevoise & Plimpton. Teaching -- lots of memories of Colorado, Puget Sound, Seattle and Missouri/Kansas City. Preparing works on and publishing extensively on criminal law and mental health law issues, including sex offender law and policy.