

Mexico

Mexico City, I go there at least once a month. I get to read, write and speak quite a bit of Spanish.

The immersion in a different culture is endlessly interesting despite the complete absence, at least so far, of any involvement in the drug wars.

In between trips to Mexico I practice real estate and corporate law in Tucson, Arizona and keep up with three children, two of whom live in New York City.

-- Recycled from Class Notes